ONE GRID

One grid unit is 50 of the font's 1000 units. Capitals and figures stand 16 units tall; strokes are 4 units, counters 2 and each side bearing 1, so the gap between two neighbouring stems is exactly a counter. Every point lands on the grid, on a 45 degree line through it, or on a circle of whole-unit radius.

EVERY END TAKES A BITE

A quarter disc of radius 2 units is bitten from every stroke end, always from the corner on the right of the stroke's outward travel: up takes the right corner, down the left, right the bottom, left the top. Where strokes meet, a disc of radius 1 unit slides half a unit into the counter and takes a crescent from the ink. O Q D and 0 have no stroke ends, so their bite marks the seam where a straight side runs into its arc.

Because every bite takes the same side of its stroke's travel, a letter turned half way round lands its bites on each other. M is W turned; 9 is 6 turned. The yellow shapes are the font's own W and 6 outlines, rotated, not redrawn.
