ROOM WITHIN / A LETTER INSIDE A LETTER

LOOK IN SIDE

The capital is a room.

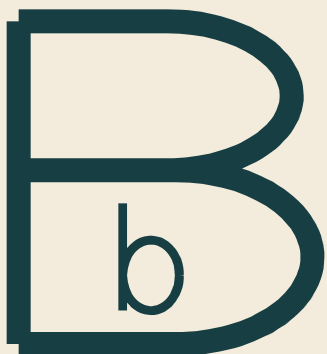

The lowercase is its occupant.

Every letter finds a different place to live.

Above the crossbar

A small a sits inside the triangle.
The large frame stays open below.

The lower room

The b occupies the lower bowl.
Its own ascender remains visible.

An open conversation

A g keeps its descending tail.
The outer G opens to the right.

Lowercase is a complete independent alphabet.

Type it on its own for a quieter line.

Ascenders rise; descenders drop.

The little voice has a life outside the capital.
