A FEW THINGS THAT CAN WAIT.

Slow Morning

Put the kettle on.

There is a small interval between waking and doing. Leave it open. A cup, a chair, a patch of sunlight moving across the table.

No rush.

DESCEND / RETURN

RISE / RETURN

Actual outlines from the current font.
A monoline stroke bends around the loops;
the lowercase carries the thought onward.

See you Sunday.

unhurried

The lowercase shares one joining height.
Its exits meet the next letter without extra space.
Keep tracking at zero to preserve the connection.

Rounded pen ends. Looping ascenders.
One regular weight. No alternate forms.

01

Warm toast

The butter finds the corners.

02

Fresh coffee

The cup warms both hands.

03

Nothing due

The morning belongs to you.

One more page.

Leave the day unplanned.

TODAY: A WALK. MAYBE TWO.

An imagined breakfast-room wall print.
A gentle script, given room to breathe.
